Oakura Guides' 5th Birthday

Above: Members of the Oakura Guide pack recently celebrated their fifth birthday with a celebration tea in the Oakura Hall. Every member of the company attended plus a few parents. This was the first time that these Guides have celebrated a birthday, and in the past 5 years the company has grown considerably. Cutting the cake in the centre of the photograph is Marilyn McAlpine, the youngest guide of the company.

YMCA SITE CLEARED

Above: The site for the building of the new YMCA stadium, behind the Baptist Church in Lizardet Street, has now been cleared. Needless to say the labour was more or less voluntary, and took about two days. More clearing has yet to be done before the building is started on, but by this time next year, much progress will have been made on the building.

Opera House Filled For Maori Show

The "House Full" sign was out at the Opera House recently for the touring Maori party, led by Guide Kiri, and compered by Maureen Kingi, ex-Miss New Zealand. The show was one of the best ever to grace the Opera House stage, and captivated the packed audience with songs, hakas and poi dances, plus a dash of comedy. More shows of this calibre are needed by NZers, for NZers.

Victoria League's Golden Jubilee

The New Plymouth War Memorial Hall was filled almost to capacity for the golden jubilee celebrations of the Victoria League. The guest speaker was Sir John Allum, who outlined the service of the League to members and guests. The celebrations took the form of a luncheon, at which League members from as far as Auckland attended.

Gala at Camp Huinga

The annual YMCA gala at Camp Huinga attracted hundreds, with the result that the association's funds would benefit by a considerable margin. Here was a gala that had fun for all, with the emphasis on getting people and their money parted, but not without giving them value for it. Altogether a successful day.

Successful YMCA Gala

Fine weather helped with the success of the YMCA gala day at Camp Huinga, when hundreds made the trip out to enjoy the fun and games provided by the organising committee. Above: The club's trampoline took an awful hiding during the afternoon, as queues formed to have a go at the bouncer. Right: Mike Ranger spent a pleasant afternoon taking the kids for a ride in his cart drawn by the mighty midget. Below: And when the comedy marching team came out, it had a greater attraction than the Pied Piper.

The North Taranaki Motor Cycle Club recently conducted the North Island 250cc Scramble Championship event on a Corbett Road property. Large fields were the order of the day, and with a fast course some very fine racing was witnessed. The winner of the event, Colin Dixon, above, left, led from the start on a borrowed machine. Colin added this to his many laurels gained this season. Above, right: There were only two spills, which were soon attended to by the ever-present St. John Ambulance men. ### MAY 1st WAS UNLUCKY FOR SOME

May the First was the national accident-free day, but early on that day a car did a flip on the Henwood Road at Bell Block. Fortunately, nobody was hurt, except of course the car, which was very badly damaged. This accident was not reported, as no injury took place, so Taranaki had a virtually accident-free May the First.

SCOUT DEN ON THE MOVE

Below: The Huatoki Scout group recently purchased by tender an old house which was part of Winstone's property in Eliot Street. The Scouts were successful in their tender, and had the old but serviceable building moved onto a site in Drake Street. When their house is ship-shape, the group will move in and be thankful for this "home of their own".

Taranaki Jersey Sales

The annual Jersey sales which recently took place at the Waiwakaiho saleyards didn't have quite so much in quantity to offer as in previous years, due probably to the fact that there are more "on the farm" sales now, which are proving more economical to the vendor. The quality of the stock on view at this sale was perhaps some of the best seen for a long time, and bidding was reasonably brisk for most lines.

Old and New

Above: New Plymouth's first Railway Station. This photograph was taken at the time that the line ran past the present Women's Rest Room, across Devon Street, and up an incline, crossing the Huatoki stream and running along a defined line between Leach and Lemon streets. How different is this building from the one in use today, below, which is comparatively new and is proving adequate for the present-day needs.

Expansion

By the way that new factories have gone up, and whole blocks of land have been levelled for housing, it appears that the city is bursting at the seams. Out Bell Block way, work is proceeding apace on the new factory for McKechnie Brothers, with one portion finished, and two more massive buildings under construction, above, while on the other end of the town, on South Road opposite Spotswood College, below, a vast portion of land has been opened up and levelled for the construction of a new housing estate. Such is the speed with which the city is growing.

Stratford's Smart New Buildings

Above: Stratford's new Post Office is now in full production. This building is set alongside the Memorial Hall, and forms part of what will, in the future, become the civic centre of the town. It is pleasing to see that the city fathers have thought far enough ahead, and planned for this very fine centre to be situated in one large block.

Below: St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stratford, has been undergoing extensive alterations in the last few weeks, and will, when opened again in the near future, be one of the most modern churches in the district. From an old-fashioned building it is being transformed into a modern building, with an imposing brick frontage.

Survival Course For A.T.C.

Seventeen boys of the NPBHS ATC flight recently spent a day and a night in the bush of the back country near Oakura, when they cooked, built shelters and generally looked after themselves. The scheme was such a success that they plan to do it again, but on a much larger scale.
